

Jeering Japs Break Up Talk by R. Kennedy

By CONRAD FINK

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of students at Tokyo's Waseda University gave Robert F. Kennedy a roaring, cheering welcome today, but shouting, jeering leftists broke up a speech by the U.S. attorney general. It was the first hostility Kennedy has met on his visit to Japan.

It was estimated the hecklers totaled fewer than 100. U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer said they were "a small group of hard-core Communists and I don't believe they were from Waseda."

Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, stood calmly on the university stage despite the pandemonium; then left the auditorium building through a rear door. Mrs. Kennedy was hit in the stomach by a gesticulating cheerleader trying to drown out the hecklers, but she quickly recovered her composure.

"I think the vast majority of the students were friendly," the President's brother said later. "I'm just sorry we didn't get more of a chance to exchange ideas. I'd like to go back."

Thousands of students swarmed about Kennedy's car as he drove into the university grounds to cheers of "Kennedy! Kennedy!" and cries of "Shake my hand!"

The American visitor was literally carried up the steps of the building. Police and university security officials finally managed to get the disheveled Kennedy inside, but he turned and waved out the door, shouting "Thank you!" A thunderous cheer went up from the students.

The auditorium was packed with about 6,000 students. As Kennedy waited to begin his speech, a disturbance broke out in the front rows and several youths tried to climb on the stage. Small knots of strategically located young people set up cries of "Kennedy go home, Kennedy off the platform, Cuba, Okinawa."

Most of the students kept quiet, and the attorney general plunged resolutely into his speech, reviewing his brother's policies. When he said he would discuss the "responsibilities of living in a democratic nation," strong applause broke out, but jeering, shouting students in the rear of the hall drowned out the rest of his remarks.

A college cheerleader jumped to the stage and got students to singing the university song. The leftists collected in the back of the hall, and the Communist Internationale mingled with the school song.

The cheerleader then led the students in school cheers. From the back the hecklers continued jeering, heaped up wooden chairs and climbed on top of them, shouting, "Go home. Leave the platform, Cuba."

The Zengakuren leftist students' group said representatives from 30 of its chapters were at the university to ask questions of Kennedy and present petitions. The Zengakuren organization led the 1960 riots that resulted in cancellation of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's visit to Japan.

A Marine Corps helicopter was stationed about three miles away for use if it had been necessary to move the Kennedy party out by air.

Ambassador Reischauer said he thought the incident would backfire on the agitators.

"It provided a good case of the Communists exposing themselves for what they are, a small minority trying to dominate the majority—and that point became obvious to everyone else in the room," he said.

State Second on Broiler Production

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas produced 223 million broiler chickens during 1961 to rank second in the nation for the industry, the Crop Reporting Service said today.

The 27 per cent increase over 1960's production of 180 million birds came despite a 25 per cent drop in the average price — from 16.3 to 12.9 cents a pound.

Gross income from broiler production for 1961 was $55 million, the agency said.

The production figure put Arkansas second to Georgia among poultry producing states. Georgia marketed 348 million birds. Behind Arkansas were Alabama with 198 million, North Carolina with 183 million, Mississippi with 135 million, Texas with 123 million and Maryland with 107 million.

Total national production was 1.8 billion broilers, an increase of 12 per cent over 1960. The average price nationally was 13.8 cents a pound, an increase of 3.1 cents from the previous year.

Benefits Part of Child's Support

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A man paying child support is allowed to reduce his payments by the amount of Social Security benefits the child receives, the Arkansas Supreme Court ruled Monday in what was apparently a precedent-setting decision.

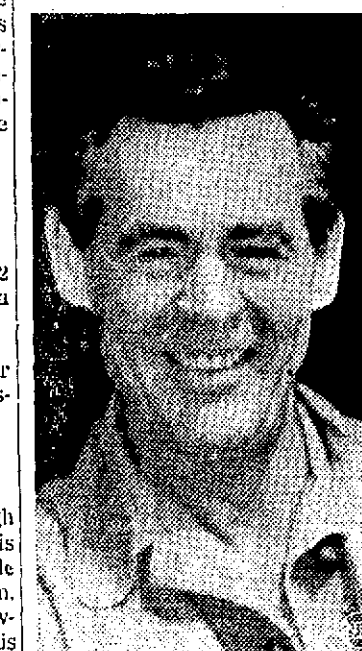

Associate Justice Sam Robinson, who wrote the unanimous opinion, said he had not been able to find a court case anywhere in the nation where the question had been previously decided.

The decision came on a suit brought by Henry J. Cash of Little Rock, who retired in 1961 and asked to deduct in figuring his child support payments the $60 monthly Social Security benefits his 13-year-old son receives.

The court said the Social Security benefits had been earned by the father and therefore should be considered a part of his support payment.

L&A Can Cut Passenger Service

HOPE, Ark. (AP)—The Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad will discontinue passenger service between Hope and Shreveport, La., March 1 under sanction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Hope Chamber of Commerce announced Monday that the ICC ruled Jan. 24 that the railroad could discontinue the trains because they were losing money.

The commission conducted a hearing in October on protests from several cities, including Hope and Springfield, La. They argued that they would be left without public transportation.

Army to Release a Number of Reservists Who Shouldn't Have Been Called at All

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army reported today it is releasing an undisclosed number of reservists it acknowledged shouldn't have been called to active duty during the Berlin crisis mobilization.

It said it "has instructed the field to advise those individuals erroneously called up they are eligible for release from the service."

Involved are men who, due to misinterpretation of policy, were kept in the ready Reserve when they should have been transferred to the inactive Reserve.

The Army said it does not have any figures on the number affected. Generally, they are among the more than 14,000 Army reservists ordered to duty specifically to fill up ranks of understrength Reserve and National Guard units mustered into active service last fall.

During the mobilization, some protested they were called up unjustly. The Army in effect admitted this today, saying "during the build-up certain personnel were called to active duty erroneously."

It noted that men entering the Army before enactment of the 1955 Reserve forces law incurred an eight-year ready Reserve obligation.

"When they completed five years of combined active duty and a ready Reserve service they were eligible for transfer to the standby Reserve," the Army said.

"Some Army installations misinterpreted Army policy and carried the men in the ready Reserve for the entire eight years and did not transfer them to the standby Reserve," the Army said. "Consequently they were retained in the ready Reserve and ordered to active duty."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told a news conference Monday he couldn't say when the 156,000 Army, Navy and Air Force reservists called up last fall can plan to go home.

"At this time, in a period of tension and crisis, we cannot give any specific date," McNamara said.

Red Bloc Seems Determined to Embarrass U. S.

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba and the Soviet bloc appear determined to magnify Cuban aggression charges against the United States into a major propaganda show in the United Nations designed to embarrass President Kennedy's administration.

The Communist strategy became clear when debate opened Monday in the General Assembly's 104-nation main Political Committee, Cuba, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia delivered marathon speeches denouncing the U.S. government as the mastermind behind last April's abortive invasion of Cuba and accusing Washington of plotting new aggression against Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

U.S. chief delegate Adlai E. Stevenson retorted that Cuba was trying to torpedo Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program and open the way for Red subversion throughout Latin America.

Observers predicted the debate would develop into a week-long display of Communist oratory.

The Soviet bloc set the stage for a full-dress airing of Cuba's charges.

Czechoslovakia and Romania put in a resolution calling on the United States to cease interference in the internal affairs of Cuba.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin attempted to maneuver the United States into the position of being on trial before the assembly. Zorin posed a series of questions directly to Stevenson dealing mainly with the United States' alleged part in the April invasion.

Zorin also demanded to know if Cuban exiles are being financed and trained on U.S. soil and at points in Latin America for another invasion thrust.

Stevenson replied that Zorin had merely dredged up a series of "lurid charges, all identical" to those delivered by Cuban delegate Mario Garcia-Inchaustegui and Karel Kurka of Czechoslovakia.

"I would ask the committee to note that they (the charges) all refer to events of last April," said Stevenson. "The only new charge that has been advanced is that refugees from Castro's Cuba are being trained at various places in the Western Hemisphere. But for that allegation he (Zorin) has not advanced a shred of evidence."

Chairman Mario Amadeo announced the committee would take a breather today to digest the mass of charges and countercharges delivered at the opening session and resume its debate Wednesday.

Attempt on K's Life Is Branded False

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Office press spokesman today branded as a "provocative rumor without any foundation at all," a story current in Moscow that an attempt had been made to assassinate Premier Khrushchev.

"It is an invention and completely false," the spokesman added.

The rumors had been investigated by correspondents and diplomats for several days. No one could find any substance to them.

The first report was that Khrushchev had been shot in the lung during a public meeting in Minsk, in White Russia, in mid-January. But on Jan. 26, some days after the rumored attack, Khrushchev spent three hours with a Burmese trade and diplomatic delegation in Kiev, in the Ukraine.

One of the Burmese said the premier was clearly in good health and good spirits.

On Jan. 30 Mrs. Khrushchev told guests at a meeting commemorating the birthday of Franklin D. Roosevelt that her husband was in Gagra, in the Caucasus.

A rumor then sprang up over the weekend that he had been stabbed Saturday in Gagra.

The foreign office said this morning this was false.

The spokesman declined to say where Khrushchev is now. Diplomats expressed belief that he is in Gagra working on the agricultural report he will give to the Communist party central committee meeting in Moscow March 5.

City Board Buys 2 New Police Cars

In a meeting here last night the Hope Board of Directors acknowledged the resignation of Municipal Judge W. K. Lemley and passed a resolution commending him for his years of service and expressing regret.

The board took no action last night in regard to filling the unexpired term. However, the Governor will appoint a local attorney probably anyone recommended by the Board.

The group accepted a low bid from Hope Auto Co. for two new police cars. There was only $3 difference in two bids.

An ordinance was passed revising the franchise tax on gas meter to $2 per meter.

Secret Army in Defiance of DeGaulle

By RODNEY ANGROVE

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—The European Secret Army answered President Charles de Gaulle's promise of an Algerian peace agreement with the daring seizure today of an Oran newspaper. Secret Army commandos blanketed the city with a pirate edition asserting the French soldiers will win their battle to block Algerian independence.

The publication and distribution of thousands of copies of the contraband newspaper in Algeria's second city was probably the most daring propaganda coup yet pulled by ex-Gen. Raoul Salan's rightist underground.

It followed only by hours De Gaulle's address to France in which he branded the Secret Army as "subversive and criminal" and vowed that nothing would stand in the way of his plans for Algerian peace and independence.

De Gaulle's speech buoyed Algeria's Moslems with new hope and optimism. Although he did not say agreement had been reached with the rebel provisional government, many saw an end of the 7½-year-old rebellion near at hand. "This time peace is really around the corner," said one.

The speech aroused new bitterness and hatred among the North African territory's Europeans. The Secret Army wasted no time in demonstrating anew its defiance of De Gaulle.

A commando group of about 10 armed men, their faces masked with scarves, invaded the newspaper Echo d'Oran at 2 a.m. as the printers were about to start the night's run.

Herding aside workers in the composing room, the raiders in 30 minutes recast the newspapers back page devoted to North African news.

The new page showed: A banner headline saying "Special Edition of the OAS" (Organisation de l'Armee Secrete).

A two-column block of white letters on a black background declaring, "The OAS will win."

The text of a speech delivered by ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud in a pirate broadcast over Radio Oran Monday night. The Secret Army kept De Gaulle off Oran's TV screens by kidnapping several radio technicians and broadcasting a speech by Jouhaud in which he declared: "We will fight to the death, victory is ours." In their haste, the raiders printed this speech upside down.

A portrait of Jouhaud working at his desk in a secret headquarters somewhere in Algeria.

Under the raiders' guns, about 20,000 copies of the new edition were run off. Beginning at 7 a.m. runners spread through the streets of Oran distributing copies eagerly snatched up by Europeans.

Authorities immediately ordered a general police alert, but by then the Secret Army men were back in hiding.

Kennedy Cites Need for Aid to U. S. Schools

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy told Congress today a crisis in American schooling makes it imperative that a five-year $5.7 billion aid to education program be enacted this year. He asked no help for church and private elementary and high schools.

It was this exclusion of parochial schools that stalled the aid for classroom construction and teachers' salaries program last year in a congressional row over help for church schools.

But Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, said again today in a special message that his program offers "the maximum scope permitted by our Constitution." He contends federal outlays for church schools would violate the constitutional concept of separation of church and state.

Kennedy's program of federal loans, grants and scholarships at every level of learning would cost $1.5 billion in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

He said the outlay would be "the most profitable investment society can make."

As if to refute reports that his administration would be willing to forego funds for aiding public school construction and higher teachers' pay, the President put that contested measure at the top of his list.

Next came aid for college construction and scholarships, which are given a better chance of becoming law. Third was an array of "special" education and training programs with emphasis on more support for science and engineering, medical and dental training and a broad attack on adult illiteracy.

Whether today's aid plan would give the stalled teacher salary and construction bill a fresh start was doubtful.

Few give the bill much chance, even if revived. But Kennedy spoke out strongly for vigorous government help. In the past fear "our crucial needs have intensified and our deficiencies have grown more critical," he said.

"It is imperative that such a proposal carrying out these objectives be enacted this session."

Farm Bureau Steps Up Member Drive

Hempstead County Farm Bureau started the neighbor-to-neighbor contact phase of its 1962 membership campaign. The county farm organization has its sights set on a goal of 690 farm family memberships.

Warren Butler, county president, said Aubrey Wilson heads the drive as membership chairman. Township leaders serving with him are Glenn Hollis, Mrs. Mary Spates, Bill Schooley, Charles Key, Bob Garrett, Bob Huffman, Clifford Russell, David Meloy, Sloan Goadlett, Andrew Avery, J. O. Luck and Moss Rowe, J. G. Prescott, B. C. Webb, Garland Kidd, Weldon Fulton, and Dail Ravenscraft.

Results of the initial effort will be reported by workers Feb. 12. A final report is scheduled for Feb. 26.

"Farm Bureau here in Hempstead County has an excellent opportunity to complete its membership work by Feb. 26, Mr. Butler said. "We are shooting for early completion to free our leadership for work on objectives set by Farm Bureau at the county, state and national level."

Last year's membership was 657. The county Farm Bureau is affiliated with the 47,635 Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation and the national group, American Farm Bureau Federation, had more than 1,600,000 member families last year.

'Arsenic' Proved Fine TV Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—There has been many a TV tale about sweet little old ladies with a penchant for homicide and all of them have seemed to be pale caribons of Abby and Martha Brewster, the spinster sisters with the secret lethal recipe for elderberry wine.
Monday night, courtesy of NBC, Joseph Kesselring's originals were back for 90 minutes. It was a fine, frivolous TV adaptation of the long-running and classic "Arsenic and Old Lace."

A good time was had by all but the most squeamish.

Aunts Abby and Martha sympathetically dispatched their 12th lonely old "friend" and stashed him in the living room window box as the merry tale of murder began. Teddy Brewster (played by Tom Bosley who imitated the first Roosevelt beautifully) raved around looting a horn, leading a charge up an imaginary San Juan Hill and digging the Panama Canal in the cellar.

Boris Karloff was back in his original stage role of the murdering Brewster brother who, owing to unfortunate plastic surgery, resembled Boris Karloff.

Dorothy Stickney and Mildred Natwick were delightful as the Brewster sisters, who would never tell fibs but just couldn't resist helping the old and lonely to their reward. Tony Randall was properly harrassed as the unhappy normal Brewster nephew.

It was very funny, quite mad and a real treat.

"About Time," a handsome hour-long special in NBC's science series, undertook to explain time and its measurement
Monday night.

Dr. Frank Baxter, aided by motion picture clips, animation and graphs, tried to lead us gently to an understanding of the principles involved.

It was all right when he was showing us the seasons, the swinging pendulum that led to the invention of clocks and the development of the imperfect calendar we all use. But when he got around to Einstein's theory of relativity and how time is slower some places than others, I was thoroughly lost. Too old and stupid, I guess, but probably the youngsters understood it.

Briefs Filed in Print Contracts

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Printing and Lithographing
Co., filed its brief with the state Supreme Court today in a suit over award of state printing contracts to the Parkin Printing Co.

The high court is expected to take the case under submission after hearing oral arguments next Monday. A ruling could come as early as one week from Monday.

The Parkin firm is carrying the appeal from a Pulaski Chancery Court decision voiding $800,000 worth of printing contracts held by Parkin because its president, Harry W. Parkin, is a member of the state Highway Commission.

Arkansas Printing and Lithographing was plaintiff in the original suit. Its brief contends that Chancellor Murray O. Reed should be upheld in the finding that the award of contracts to Parkin's company violates a constitutional prohibition against conflict of interest.

Industrial Policy Group Launched

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An Arkansas Industrial Policy Committee, which has some of the state's top businessmen as members, was launched today by the state Chamber of Commerce.

Kenneth Pat Wilson of Jacksonville, chamber president and an ex-officio committee member, said the new group would function independently of the chamber in an effort to co-ordinate Arkansas industrial development program.

Winthrop Rockefeller, chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, was named to head the new committee.

Other members are: W. R.
Stephens, of Little Rock chairman of the board of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co.; Paul O. Canaday of Little Rock, president of Arkansas Power and Light Co.; Charles Czeschin of Blytheville,
president of Arkansas - Missouri Power Co.; Warren Bray of Little Rock, vice president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and William Walker of Fort Smith, president of the Fort Smith Gas Co.

Frank W. Cantrell of Little Rock executive secretary of the state chamber, joins Wilson as an ex-officio member. Cantrell will serve

Continuation of Personal Assessment Picture for All of Hempstead County

This is the third in a series of articles giving the true picture of tax assessments in Hempstead. Today's figures deal strictly with personal property and is a continuation of the last article.

Very Little Jewelry

Value of Diamonds, jewelry, etc. in 1961 was $5,865; this is a slight increase over the previous year which showed $5,140 worth assessed; but was down sizeably over 1959 which showed assessments at $6,460.

Household Goods Off $54,000

In 1961 the value of household furnishings ran $600,475 on the tax books; this was up over $593,840 registered in 1960 but was far below the $655,105 assessed in 1959.

Stocks, Bonds Far Off

In 1961 there were $17,770 worth of stocks, bonds and other securities registered; this was far below the $44,815 assessed the previous year and below the $27,020 assessed during 1959.

Business Fixtures Up

The value of business and professional furniture, fixtures and equipment was assessed at $121,200 in 1961; this showed an increase over the previous year which was $109,255 and an even greater increase over 1959 which was $63,315.

Merchants Fixtures Dip

The assessment of merchants stock and fixtures for 1961 was $391,675 which was up from the 1960 figure of $364,500 but was far below the 1959 assessment of $419,090.

Plant Equipment Down

The value of manufacturing equipment in the county has gone down considerably. The 1961 assessment was $124,865; this is compared to the $143,055 the previous year and is far below the 1959 assessment of $167,025.

This One Is Up

The value of taxable shares of domestic associations, companies and corporations was assessed at $271,255 in 1961; this is an increase over the $230,215 in 1960 and the $238,435 assessed in 1959.

Few Intangibles

The value of intangibles such as and including airplanes and boats was a mere $2,100 in 1961;
this is a sharp drop from the $11,120 registered in 1959. There was none at all assessed in 1960.

All Other Personal

The value of all other personal property including cabins, etc. was assessed at $52,560 in 1961; this was up from the $51,520 of 1960 but was down from the $57,760 in 1959.

Oil Companies

The assessment of oil companies during last year was $20,850; this compares to the $19,245 the previous year and to $23,955 back in 1959.

White House Marchers Go to Jail

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nine
"peace marchers" arrested in front of the White House have chosen 10 days in jail instead of paying $10 fines for refusing to comply with a Washington picketing law.

The group was arrested Monday after refusing to obey a police order to move to the far end of a park across from the White House. Six others in the group sponsored by the Committee for Nonviolent Action of New York complied. All were protesting nuclear testing.

Police said they arrested the nine after explaining to them a Washington law forbidding demonstrations within 500 feet of an embassy or the grounds of any

as committee secretary.

"The committee should examine the directions in which Arkansas future industrial growth might be channeled so as to obtain the optimum development in terms of available resources, both human and material," Wilson said.

Backers of Urban Bill Plan Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic congressional leaders vigorously supported President Kennedy's proposed urban affairs department today and attacked Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York for questioning their motives.

After the party chiefs' weekly breakfast with Kennedy in the White House, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana read a statement to newsmen strongly endorsing a new department to handle problems of the metropolitan areas.

Mansfield followed up his prepared statement by recalling that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower announced in advance that he would name Oveta Culp Hobby as secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He said Eisenhower designed Mrs. Hobby before the department was created in 1953.

Republican critics of Kennedy's proposal have accused the President of playing politics by announcing that he will appoint Robert C. Weaver, a Negro, as secretary of urban affairs if and when that department is established. Weaver now heads the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Rockefeller last week accused Kennedy and the Democrats of "political fakery" in naming Weaver ahead of time. Rockefeller, implying Kennedy really intended to defeat his own proposal and create a political advantage, said Democrats were afraid to let the urban affairs plan stand on its merits and
"brought in the completely unrelated race issue" through the designation of Weaver.

Mansfield, saying Rockefeller was Mrs. Hobby's chief deputy when the welfare department was formed, snapped: "He shouldn't be calling the kettle black."

House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts said Rockefeller "certainly puts himself in a markedly inconsistent position."

Mansfield described prospects for Senate approval of the urban affairs department as "fairly good." He predicted it will come to a vote in the Senate between Feb. 14 and 19. As it now rests before Congress, the department proposal will become law unless vetoed by a majority of either the House or Senate. When advanced earlier as an ordinary piece of legislation, it was rejected by the House Rules Committee.

Geologists recognize only four stones as precious: diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires.
Others are semi-precious or ornamental.

The nine, who agreed to move across the street to the park but not to the far end of it, later told Municipal Judge Edward A.
Beard they felt "morally obligated" not to pay the fine.

The nine were identified as Scott Herrick, 36; his wife Beatrice, 26; Robert Gilmore, 40;
and Susan Hoffman, 19, all of New York; Lawrence Scott, 53,
Washington; Gerald B. Lehmann,
25, Mokena, Ill.; Harry Purvis,
46, Northport, N.Y.; Stephen Groff, 20, Souderton, Pa., and Beverly Kanegson, 21, Norwich, Conn.

The new size Dodge Dart has the most powerful standard six engine in the business. It develops 146 horsepower from 225 cubic inches. It takes a V8 in other cars priced near Dart to keep up with it. Even then most of them can't. Dead weight and useless overhang have been all but eliminated in the '62 Dart.
What results is an astonishing power-to-weight ratio that makes a Dart-6 act like an eight. And remember, this is the same six that got better than 23 miles to the gallon in last year's Mobilgas Economy Run. Frankly, we don't think anybody but a pro can get this kind of mileage. But it does give you an idea of the engine's potential.

Repeated tests in the new size Dart prove that it will deliver at least 5% better gas economy than last year. See your Dodge Dealer now and drive the new size Dodge Dart. There's no better value on the market today.

Frigid Air Comes Down From Canada

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter sent another blast of arctic cold across broad areas of the midcontinent today. Northern areas shivered in temperatures lower than -30 degrees and freezing weather dipped on southward to northern portions of the Gulf states.

The mercury plunged to a record low for the date of -4 degrees in Chicago and 20-mile-an-hour winds from the northwest intensified the discomfort. Chicago had a balmy high of 50 degrees Sunday.

In Minnesota, International Falls had a low of -31 and Bemidji, -30. Duluth had a low of -22, Minneapolis -18 and Bismarck, N.D., -15.

Cold wave warnings went up in portions of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine as the cold pushed across the Appalachians and headed toward the Northeast.

Below zero readings also were reported in parts of Michigan, Wisconsin, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and northern Illinois.

Cold wave or freeze warnings were in effect as far south as the Gulf Coast states from southern Texas east, northeastward through the lower and middle Mississippi Valley, the Ohio Valley, most of the Great Lakes region

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sisson

The marriage of Miss Eddie Ruth Leggett to Pfc. Charles E. Sisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sisson of Hope, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Leggett of Cotton Valley, La.

The wedding was solemnized Saturday, Feb. 3 in the Cotton Valley Church of Christ by Rev. Harley E. Sisson, brother of the groom. The altar was beautiful with baskets of white carnations.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, A. J. Leggett, wore a ballerina length dress of white lace over tulle, with a bouffant skirt fitted bodice and long sleeves tapering to a point over the hands. She carried a white bible topped with white carnations and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Sandra Wilson, served as maid of honor and Mrs. Jerry Slack and Mrs. Ken Grey sang "Through the Years." Harold Sisson, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The mother of the bride wore brown with white accessories and the mother of the groom wore green silk with white accessories. Each pinned white carnations at

Picks, Shovels

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Picks and shovels instead of heavy machinery will be used to widen Kingston's major drainage canal. The project will give work to at least 50 of the unemployed labor force in this city of 25,000.

City and county governments voted Monday to spend $15,000 on the project, to last about two months.

Suggests Use Newspapers as Textbooks

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Fayetteville editor urged Arkansas teachers Monday to use newspapers as living textbooks in classrooms.

Allan A. Gilbert Jr., managing editor of the Northwest Arkansas Times, said schools have used newspapers for 40 years but increased attention now is being given to them, as a means of supplementing classroom work.

Gilbert, who also is chairman of the Arkansas Associated Press Association's News Study Committee, addressed about 300 teachers at the third annual Conference on Instruction, sponsored by the Arkansas Education Association and various educational groups.

The AAPA at its fall meeting last year voted to push for increased classroom use of newspapers.

"Throughout the country," Gilbert said, "schools are beginning to use newspapers as an implement in teaching civics, government, mathematics, history, geography and economics. The obstacle of crowded curricula has been satisfactorily surmounted in most instances by incorporating newspaper work into existing courses."

"The interesting thing is that in almost every case teachers have reported an increased student interest and participation. I think this is excellent, not only for these future citizens but for the newspapers and America, too."

Gilbert said some schools use newspapers only to teach current events and others, specifically one in Nyack, N.Y., uses news to teach the fundamentals of the free enterprise system.

Gilbert said Arkansas Associated Press newspapers are seeking ways to implement this program in local schools and he assured teachers they get cooperation from their hometown newspapers.

"Not purely on a journalistic level," he added, "but on a broader level of teaching readership, citizenship, civic participation, understanding of world affairs and, if I may use the term, deductive reasoning."

Another speaker, Dr. Arno Jewett of the U.S. Education Department in Washington, called for improvement of teaching English in public schools.

Jewett said English instruction today is better than ever but it could be improved further. He said English instruction programs lack continuity from grade to grade, teachers often don't know enough about the history of language to make it interesting to their students and some teachers are not acquainted with modern teaching methods.

Jewett said one cause of faulty English preparation among students is that in most schools the burden of trying to get students to express themselves clearly is placed entirely on the English teacher. He said teachers of all subjects should emphasize expression.

To Aid Jobless Out of School

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg says the Kennedy administration is determined to do something for the one million Americans aged 16-22 who are both jobless and out of school.

He said a "modest and moderate" beginning would be the administration's youth employment opportunities act now before Congress, and he urged support of the measure.

Goldberg spoke Monday at a national conference on public work programs for urban young people, sponsored by the National Social Welfare Association and the National Committee on Employment of Youth.

13-Year-Old Girl Asks Why We Hurt Those We Love

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I almost killed my grandmother last night by taunting her with what she had done as a girl. Now, I'm afraid I shall have to leave the only mother I've ever known.

Why did I do this terrible thing to the one I love best in all this world?

Mommie and Daddy have been divorced 12 years—I'm now 13.

Grandmother has taken care of me and my brother ever since. Mommie's work keeps her away most of the time. One day, when she came to see us, Daddy happened to be here too. They began quarreling. I heard him tell Mommie she was no better than her mother had been and then the truth was out. Mommie made me promise to keep the secret locked in my heart.

Last evening a boy called me a nice kid in my class. Before I could say more than "Hi!" Grandmother snatched the receiver from my hand and ordered him to leave me alone. He hung up and I began yelling at grandmother about the trouble she'd got into as a girl and how I could take better care of myself. She didn't say a word just crumpled up in the chair and then whispered, "So you know too!"

I tried to put my arms around her but she shoved me away. Later I heard her call Mommie and say it was no use. Her past would pull me down as it had Mommie. I long to tell her how sorry I am and how very much I love her but the words won't come. Why is there this wall between us? Is there any hope for bold, brassy, bad-tempered me? —Unwanted

Dear Helen: We hurt those we love because they have the power to hurt us. It is a vicious circle. You lashed out at your grandmother because you were hurt by her lack of faith in you. Yet, her only motive was a loving desire to save you from an experience similar to the one which has blighted her life. Had a better understanding existed between you, the approach would have been less tactless.

Rush to your grandmother and tell her, before it is too late, how very sorry you are and how much she means to you. Talk to her as you have written me. What you need to learn, as do we all, is self-discipline.

Here is a quotation to stick up in your mirror: "To live successfully, a man must find himself, know himself, deny himself, control himself and apply himself." A large order for a 13-year-old girl but your letter indicates a maturity beyond your years.

Dear Helen: Whenever Mrs. X is invited for dinner, she invariably brings along an uninvited guest or two. She and my mother-in-law are dear friends and as a consequence, my mother-in-law, as well as we, have to put up with her inconsiderate ways.

I am planning a surprise party for my in-laws and, of course, asked Mrs. X. Yesterday she phoned and commanded me to invite her daughter too. Our dining room, being small, only accommodates a certain number at a sit-down dinner. I think it's time somebody tells Mrs. X. off. Should I? —Harried Hostess.

Dear Harried Hostess: Use the light touch! Tell Mrs. X. it would be a subway crush in a dining room as small as yours if you had to squeeze in one more guest. So, much as you regret it, you cannot extend the invitation to her daughter. Say that on some occasion when you are entertaining young people, you will ask her. For the sake of your mother-in-law, go easy. To be needlessly rude to Mrs. X. would not only be a breach of manners but reflect upon the family as a whole.

Dear Helen: I have an acute financial problem but feel more or less stymied because, not being very strong, I cannot hold down an eight-hour day, 40-hour week job. Since I had a most interesting and wonderful childhood I wonder if I might not share with others the years of my growing up by writing a book and, in the doing, make some money. Having only a limited education is this practical? —Kit

Dear Kit: Write for the love of it, not because you want to earn money. It's a long road.

After almost a lifetime of writing, I'm still learning. So much is involved; talent, education, point of view, experience and application, to name a few. Also timing. If yours is a timely, sensational story you might, even though a novice, tell it. Determine its salability by trying out a one-page synopsis on various editors. Choose a publishing house which specializes in your type of story. Meanwhile, why not pick up where you left off in your studies? Ask the local board of education to advise you.

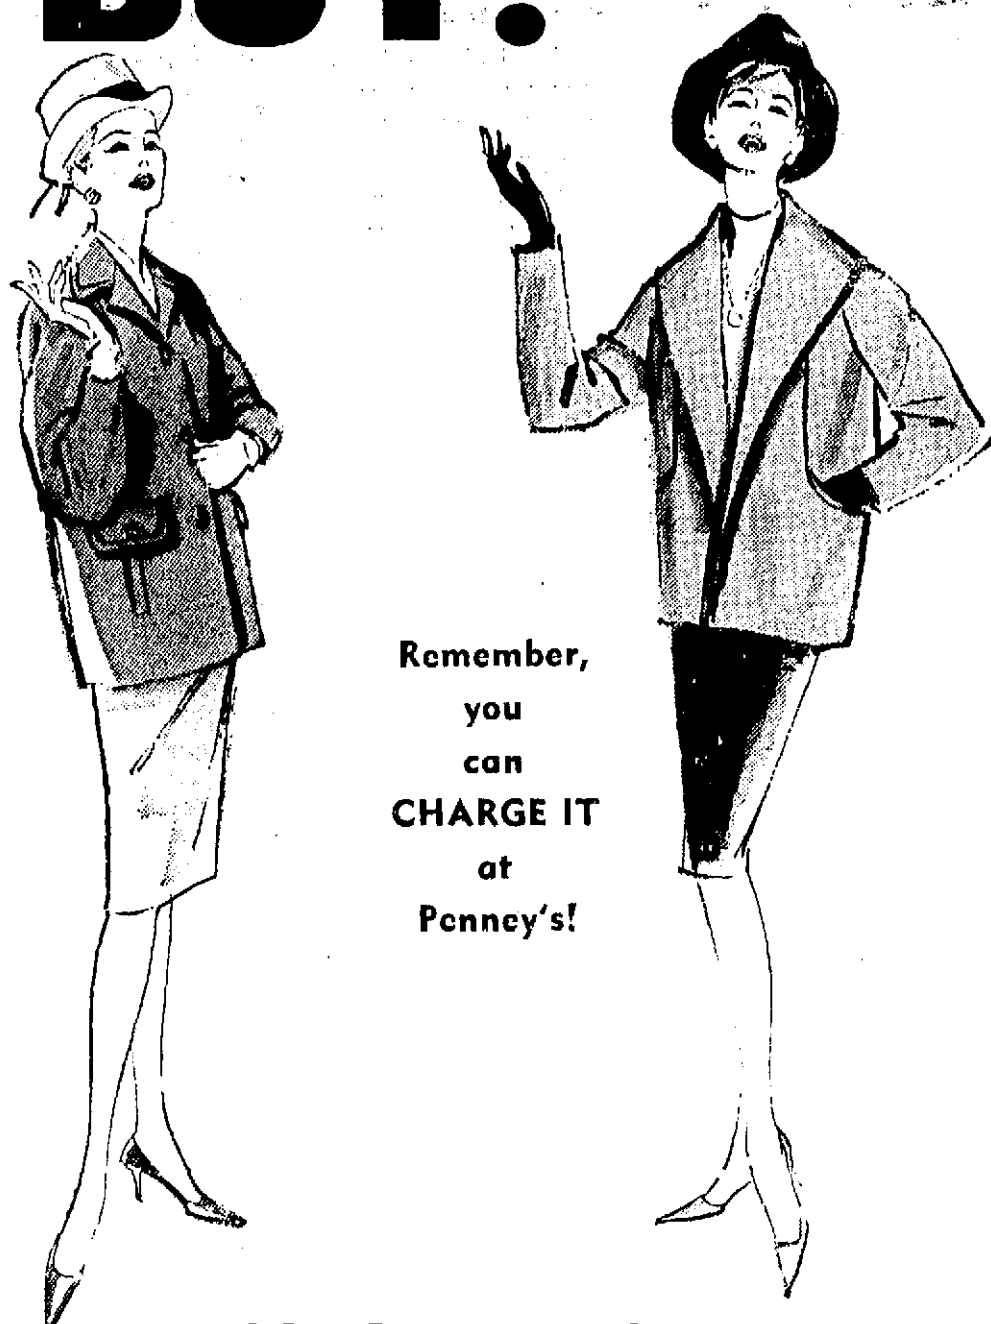

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Helpful leaflets available. Send for "And So You Want To Write."

Official Life Ritual Is Visiting Sick

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the great rituals of office life is visiting "the one who is ill."

In a large business firm there is always someone coming down with ulcers, a strange virus, or just plain gravel in his gizzard.

One by one—or sometimes in glad groups—other members of the office herd wind slowly over the plain to their stricken fellow worker's pallet of pain, bringing him a nosegay of wilted daffodils and advice on how to get well.

If you have ever had to temporarily trade your swivel chair for a hospital bed, here are a few types of visitors from your office you are probably familiar with:

Hungry Hubert—He arrives just as they bring in their evening meal. "I wouldn't over load my stomach at a time like this," he says. Hubert lets you have the soup and crackers. Then he eats your bread and butter, roast beef and potatoes, and dessert. Then he borrows a toothpick and leaves grumbling, "How do they expect anyone to survive on grub like that?"

Ambitious Albert—He has always wanted your job. "Have they given you the last rites yet?" he asks hopefully. When you shake your head no, he says, "Well, see you back at the old salt mine." And he tromps out and goes to the nearest bar to drown his sorrow.

Take-charge Tillie—The personal secretary is a frustrated Florence Nightingale. She stuffs three pillows under you to make you uncomfortable, bawls out the entire hospital staff for neglecting you. As soon as she departs, an angry nurse makes you unveil your backside and harpoons you with three needle shots—in revenge.

Opportunistic Oscar—"How about a little gin rummy?" he demands, pulling out a deck of cards and shuffling them on your stomach. He feels sure that in your weakened condition he can win back the $3.17 he lost to you in the locker room two weeks before.

Coated-tongue Charlie—the office hypochondriac inquires about your symptoms in detail, asks to see your incision, if any. The next morning, early, he is wheeled into the next room as an emergency case. Overnight he has come down with your ailment.

Practical Pamela—the pretty stenographer told the boss she'd need three hours off to visit you. She sticks her head in the door, says "Hi!" brightly, and spends the remaining 2 hours, 59 minutes and 58 seconds doing her personal shopping.

His Omnipotence—the boss comes in swinging a golf club. "Take all the time you need—and don't worry," he burbles. "I've got one of the younger executive trainees filling in for you, and he's doing a real bang-up job."

That does it. Pale and wan, you show up at work the next day. You realize that the only place you'll ever recover is back in your warm swivel chair, where your office well-wishers will no longer bother to overwhelm you with cheer.

Parkins Wants to Keep Rich Contracts

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Attorneys for the Parkin Printing Co. got Arkansas Supreme Court permission today to spend one hour presenting their case when it comes up for oral argument next Monday.

The appellee, Arkansas Printing and Lithographing Co., also will have one hour. Normal time for oral arguments is a half-hour to the side, but attorneys for Parkin said they needed additional time.

Parkin is appealing a Pulaski Chancery Court order invalidating about $800,000 worth of printing contracts held by the firm because its president, Harry W. Parkin, is a member of the state Highway Commission.

The Supreme Court has advanced the case on its calendar in the public interest. Several state agencies are running short of printing supplies because of the invalidation order.

Execution of Negro Stayed

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The execution of Edward Walton Jr., sentenced to die Friday for the slaying of an Ashdown night watchman, was stayed today by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

The court granted Walton's request for permission to proceed with an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Walton, 30, Negro, was sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of Roy Thomas Hallman, a white man, at Ashdown June 20, 1960.

One execution still is scheduled at Tucker prison farm Friday. Clarence Stewart Jr., is scheduled to die for the Jan. 8, 1959 fatal stabbing of a North Little Rock auto parts dealer.

BROWNSTONE GOING by Elizabeth Shonk

The girl gave a fine show of Gallic rage, and the man, taking advantage of the pursed lips, kissed her.

THE STORY: Hilda Thorne, a young widow and her 7-year old son Adam, arrive at the brownstone mansion where the Russells live on Fifth Avenue in the 1870's. Hilda is to be a companion for Jenny, a niece of Uncle George and Aunt Judith Russell.

Chapter 2

Before he returned from superintending preparations for the "upstairs" dinner, Saunders made a short, refreshing trip to the wine cellars. By the time he entered the servants' dining room, he was pleased to see that the group gathered at the big table were waiting for him with respectful but obvious interest.

He held a hand of stern authority over the staff of 20. Only Miss Maggy superseded him and even she had no authority over the dining room or the cellars. Of course, the outside staff occupied a world of their own. After a brief, unsuccessful brush with Clarence, the coachman of many years' standing, Saunders had prudently decided to leave him and his glooms and stable boys to themselves.

Madam's personal maid wasn't there. Nor little Emily. "Go on, Mr. Saunders," said Smythe, the master's valet, "tell us what she's like."

Saunders pulled down his striped waistcoat. "Not a bad looking little thing," he said graciously. "Quite like a lady. But down at the heels, and not easy, you might say, in a world like ours."

"Where does she come from?" Mrs. Tompkins, the massive cook, wanted to know.

"No place of account. A little village in New England, I heard Madam say."

He sat down in the head place of the table and took his napkin out of its ring, tucking it into his vest.

"Now, then," and he glanced around the table, "all I got to say about this Mrs. Thorne is, we keep her in her place. Yes, and that type of hers, too. Just remember they're not real quality."

"Something like a governess, would you say, Mr. Saunders?" Albert, the newly imported English footman, inquired.

Saunders considered. "About that class, Albert," he answered. "Though, of course, Miss Jennifer don't need a governess, now. More like a companion, I'd say. Madam keeps on as Mrs. Thorne is family, but it's my belief she's just on charity. Not a penny in her pocket and no use to expect tips or such from her."

Saunders said Emily come in, carrying Addie's empty tray, and smiling to herself.

"And what are you looking so pleased about?" he asked.

"Oh, Mr. Saunders, it's that Mrs. Thorne and her little one. Master Addie, he is, and that good. And her, so pretty and young. Like sunshine, they are, in this dark old place."
